Daily fare cap

Fare cap is the maximum amount you will pay in a day no matter how long you travel. Public transport is half price until 1 January 2027, and the prices below reflect this discount.

Once you hit the cap, travel is free for the rest of the day.

- Weekday cap: $5.70 full fare | $2.85 concession
- Weekend cap: $4.00 full fare | $2.00 concession | Seniors free

Until you reach the cap, how much you pay depends on how far you travel.

Cheaper travel before 7am - Early bird

Your metropolitan train journey is free if you tap on and off before 7.15am on weekdays.

You get the free early bird fare when you:

- travel on a metropolitan train, or a V/Line service between Pakenham or Sunbury and Melbourne
- keep a positive account balance
- tap on and off within 2 hours, before 7.15am on a weekday.

To make sure you get the early bird fare, use train services that arrive at your destination by 7am.

Cheaper travel after 6pm

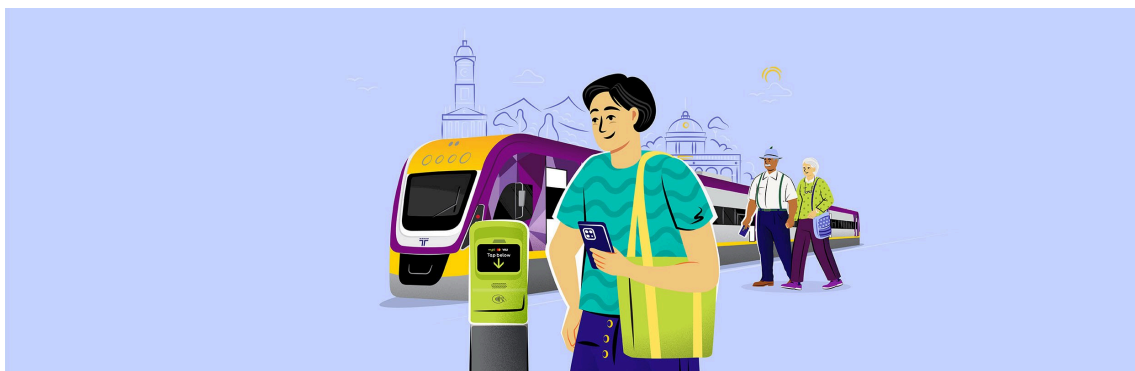

If you tap on after 6pm, you can travel until 3am the next day. This gives you up to 9 hours of travel for the price of 2 hours.

Weekend and public holiday fares

On weekends and public holidays, your daily fare is capped at $4.00 for full fare, $2.00 for concession, and free for Seniors myki holders.

You may be eligible for free weekend travel if you have certain concessions or a free travel pass.
